Rick,

Thx so much.

Looks great. Several quick suggestions to wrap this up. That I edited below.

1) Add a title like life lessons from the water? 2) maybe split the second to last paragraph so it ends with the lesson ( like the previous paragraphs) . 3) add a closing sentence about the future with hints at playing in college?

Life Lessons from the water!!

When I was just six months old, I was outdoors and barely able to move when I accidentally crawled into an in-ground pool. To my parents' amazement, instead of crying or sinking in the few intervening seconds before they retrieved me, I had already begun to bob, gurgle, and giggle.

In recognition of this natural predilection for water, my parents enrolled me in a swim team, and my competitive years began. Even at six-years-old, I loved the ability to track and improve my personal best times; this constant and objective feedback kept me motivated to train and work harder. As the years passed, I soon found that whether I had won or lost an event, I wasn't fully satisfied unless I had done my best. This was my first major life-lesson.

I pushed these boundaries even further when, at nine-years old, I trained to swim the San Francisco Bay from Alcatraz Island. I used to swim with my dad and his trainer, who quickly became surprised at my endurance potential. He shared a story of a young boy he had trained to become the youngest person ever to swim from Alcatraz. I finally got my parents to agree that, if I trained properly for a year, they would let me try it. I swam with my club as usual, but added one day each weekend in the San Francisco Bay for nearly a year with my new trainer to get used to the conditions and the frigid waters. The big day came, and I made it from Alcatraz to the shore after only an hour, setting the new world record.

Achieving a new world record was one of the greatest moments of my young life, and I constantly reflect upon this time of struggle and arduous pain in order to gain strength in my moments of weakness. Here was my second life lesson learned in the water: you can accomplish almost anything – even at a young age - if you have the right motivation, discipline, and perseverance.

Now, I continue to learn and grow from my experiences in the water by playing high school water polo. I was first exposed to water polo in middle school and loved the combination of active team play and water. I particularly enjoy the teamwork, dynamism, and unpredictability of the game. Here was a whole new way for me to grow my skills and talents as an athlete in a sport where team interactions, as opposed to individual performance, really made the difference. I began to thrive as a water polo player due to the team mentality. Approaching the sport with that mindset has made me into a dependable player who can score the ball, yet will consistently help on defense and assist others on plays during the offense. This was an important skill for me to develop, because I am naturally a humble person who cares much more about the team than about my own individual statistics. This was my third life lesson learned in the water: a true team can accomplish far more than a group of individual stars.

Competing and being in the water has helped me to set bold goals and become very disciplined and passionate. The challenges of rigid training and competition schedules combined with a demanding academic environment have forced me to develop great mental focus and personal discipline. I am responsible to myself, my team, and my teachers to by my best.

My identity as a swimmer has been a central source of self-confidence and pride throughout my life. My experiences with water have spanned the age spectrum, from when I was literally too young to remember, to this very day. I believe and hope they will in college and for the rest of my life as well!

First is to finalize the Personal Statement- this is all about Johnny putting in time not me- my work is done quickly or is done. The profile I am assuming you are speaking about Naviance? I have attached the common to Naviance filled in schools etc- all done. The teacher Rec part he will do this week.

Jovan will provide Johnny's info to admission when he does his other guys over the next month. No payment of money till he gets a verbal and written from admissions and then 50 percent to a savings account I set up. Then the remainder upon an acceptance letter in March with everyone else.

Johnny,

Morning... This is very important to be completed ASAP!

I just heard from our athletic department, saying you still have not submitted your SAT score to the NCAA. Can you please send me your username/login password for your NCAA account. So we can try to check on our end. Do you know if and when your scores were sent to the NCAA?? Please get back to me ASAP!! This is extremely important for you being on the team. Thanks

Thanks!

Hi Leslie & John,

I am sure it was so hard to say goodbye to them. We took them to In n Out and heard their stories about the week and what a fantastic time everyone had.

Andrew is missing his vacation already. He said this was the top of vacations for sure. He gave us the day by day activities and all the fabulous meals. His new love of red wine, Heineken beer and fries with mayo. He said the skiing was amazing and wants to own a home in Chamonix some day! He enjoyed being with your family and said your girls reminded him of his sisters. And, he thinks Johnny is the best!

We can't thank you enough for having Andrew and for your extreme generosity. This was a Spring Break that he will never forget!

Looking forward to seeing the photos!
Take care,
Christine

Please review... Per Carlos a pick up at Caesars at 3:00 would work best and at battlefield by 3:30 – takes about an hr for the guns, and 15 mins for the tank portion which is best when it's light out. Let me know, final payment can be made a few days prior to date once the final count is in. Let me know.
